Supply Chain Challenges

Half-pint paper milk carton supply shortage

USDA's Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) is aware that schools/entities in multiple States are experiencing supply chain challenges related to half-pint cardboard milk packaging issues. To be clear, there is not a shortage of milk; the issue resides strictly with the cardboard packaging.

A significant industry supplier of the half-pint paper milk cartons is experiencing a shortage, which may impact dairy's ability to fully supply all orders. Unfortunately, this shortage spans nationwide and no other paper carton vendors have any excess capacity to assist in alleviating this issue. This shortage is likely to happen as soon as October 30th and we should see an improvement in supply by early 2024.

As Child Nutrition Program Sponsors, we are working with suppliers to obtain a solution while this shortage exists.

Featuring in-season produce in your cafeteria

NOVEMBER

The Nutrition Group's signature concept Farm to Fork offers in-season fresh produce features in school districts every year! We pair the seasonal selection of fresh produce with a nutrition education message for students, boasting the benefits of adding farm fresh produce into your cafeteria breakfast and lunch programs.

Each school year during the fall months, we showcase seasonal fruits and vegetables as they become available. The final week of Farm to Fork culminates in a bountiful Harvest Feast that coincides with the Thanksgiving meal.

Join us this Fall to enjoy locally sourced foods!
